A Note From Our Vice President

We as club are aging. We are losing family and friends it seems too often. It's hard not to dwell on our losses. My wife died two years ago and I have just started to get past remembering her days of illness and started recalling all of the good times we had. I don't look at pictures taken when she was ill, I look for the ones when she was healthy and happy. It's taken me a long time to realize what a great time we had versus what we may have missed. I think my grief is sometimes just me feeling sorry for myself. I don't feel sorry for her as her suffering is over and I believe she is in heaven. (I also think she haunts me every once in a while. She hides things, I'm sure.) For those that have gone before us, if you are religious, you find comfort in there being a heaven. If you are not particularly religious, you can have some comfort that our friends and loved ones are no longer suffering. I hate to point it out, but this is a journey we must all take. Rest in peace brothers and sisters, family and friends, we will remember you fondly.

Chef John's Corned Beef and Cabbage

It's almost St. Patrick's Day, and for many that means boiling up a nice authentic Irish dinner of corned beef and cabbage. The original Irish recipe actually used a type of lean bacon, made with a cut of pork similar to Canadian bacon. Corned beef came into the picture as a lower-cost substitution, to replace the more expensive and harder to find cut.

By Chef John

Prep: 15 mins
Cook: 3 hrs 50 mins
Additional: 10 mins
Total: 4 hrs 15 mins
Servings: 8
Yield: 8 servings

Ingredients

- 1 (4 pound) corned beef brisket with spice packet
- 3 quarts water
- 1 onion, quartered
- 3 carrots, cut into large chunks
- 3 stalks celery, cut into 2-inch pieces
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 pounds red potatoes, halved
- 1 small head cabbage, cut into eighths

Directions

- Step 1
Combine corned beef and spice packet contents, water, onion, carrots, celery, and salt together in a large pot or Dutch oven; bring to a simmer, skimming off any foam that rises to the surface.
- Step 2
Cover the pot, reduce heat to low, and simmer until meat is almost fork-tender, about 3 hours. Add potatoes and simmer, uncovered, until potatoes are almost tender, about 30 minutes more.
- Step 3
Place cabbage pieces on top of and around meat, cover the pot, and simmer until cabbage is tender, 20 to 30 minutes more.
- Step 4
Remove meat to a cutting board and let rest 10 to 15 minutes. Cut across the grain and serve in a bowl; ladle vegetables and broth over the top.

Ed's Premier Auto Body

"Quality From Start to Finish"

To our customers,

Thank you for the many years of loyalty and for entrusting Ed's Premier Auto Body with your vehicle repairs. It has been a privilege and an honor to serve you over the years!

After 30+ years of working and building Ed's to what it is today, we are announcing our retirement and the sale of the business to Crash Champions, LLC. Crash Champions has a stellar reputation for quality repairs and are a fast-growing company with hundreds of locations thus far throughout the United States.

While our name will change, our team of employees and managers will remain on-site as an integral part of the continued operations moving forward. This will ensure quality repairs will continue for our loyal customers.

We know our grandfather, founder, Ed Welsch, along with past owner, our father Al Keen are smiling down on us from Heaven knowing the business that started as a 1 car shop in Ed's garage turned into the thriving business that Ed's Premier Auto Body is today.

With gratitude,
Brian and Jason Keen

Ram 1500 EV Shown in More Clarity With New Teaser Images

Joel Stocksdale
Tue, March 1, 2022

Besides the first electric Jeep and other product plans, Stellantis gave us yet another preview of the upcoming electric Ram 1500 pickup truck. The company isn't giving much away, but these new renderings do give us some more details on what the truck will look like.

The most striking features of the front are the pairs of LED lights above and below that meet toward the middle in a sort of dog bone shape. In the middle is the updated Ram logo that's been featured for its "Ram Revolution" program that takes input from Ram fans for designing the truck. The hood has creases that are suggestive of the dual-level, semi-truck-inspired design that has stuck with the truck since the 1990s. It also seems to have a heat-extractor vent design, which we're not sure would really be functional on an electric truck. Along the sides, the fenders appear to be pushed far outward. The edge where the cab meets the bed has a jog in it that pushes into the cab. It has us thinking the cab and bed may be one piece, along the lines of the Chevy Silverado EV. That single piece will still ride on a separate frame, though, since the Ram 1500 EV will be built on the STLA Frame platform. Continuing on the topic of side styling, the window sill rises toward the rear pillar, and that rear pillar leans forward, again more like the GM electric truck designs. At the back, the electric Ram has taillights that connect into platform can accommodate 159 to 200 kWh of battery capacity with a range of up to 500 miles. Early renderings also show the platform using independent suspension both front and rear. Furthermore, Ram has said it will offer a plug-in hybrid variant based on the electric model to go on sale the same year.

And electrification won't stop at the 1500. Stellantis CEO

Carlos Tavares said, "Ram will continue delivering fully electrified solutions in the majority of its segments by 2025 and a full portfolio of electrified solutions for all of its segments by 2030." This certainly includes Ram's commercial offerings such as the upcoming electric ProMaster, but one can assume that this applies to vehicles such as Ram's heavy duty pickup trucks. We're curious if it may apply to a truck smaller than the 1500, too. Time will tell.

the tailgate like the Ford F-150 Lightning. The shape also echoes that of the headlights, along with the illuminated Ram logo. The rear shot also gives more clarity on the unique cab design.

The electric Ram will go into production in 2024. As touched on, it will use the STLA Frame platform that features a traditional separate frame from the body. The
